Disclosure of Financial Relationships

For Elizabeth Ward

Information You Need to Know to Disclose Your Financial Relationships

Why We Ask:

As an accredited continuing education provider, Rutgers Biomedical and Health Sciences is required to collect disclosure information from all individuals in a position to control content of an accredited educational activity, and then identify and mitigate all relevant financial relationships prior to individuals assuming their roles in the activity. Based on this disclosure information, Rutgers is required to disqualify any individual from planning and implementation if an unresolvable financial relationship exists. This process is required by the Standards for Integrity and Independence set forth by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education and adopted by Joint Accreditation for Interprofessional Continuing Education, Rutgers' accrediting entity.

What to Disclose:

- Individuals are required to disclose all financial relationships with ineligible companies (entities whose primary business is producing, marketing, re-selling, or distributing healthcare products used by or on patients) within the prior 24 months
- Examples of ineligible companies include:
 - Pharmaceutical companies or distributors
 - Device manufacturers or distributors
 - Bio-medical startups that have begun a governmental regulatory approval process
 - Compounding pharmacies that manufacture proprietary compounds
 - Diagnostic labs that sell proprietary products
 - Manufacturers of health-related wearable products
 - Growers, distributors, manufacturers or sellers of medical foods and dietary supplements
 - Advertising, marketing, or communications firms whose clients are ineligible companies
 - Pharmacy benefit managers

Step 6: When all information has been entered in the disclosure form, electronically sign the document and click “Submit”.

I attest that the above information is correct as of this date of submission (sign below):
